Summer School: The Economics of Crime over Time and Space

Theory, Practice and Applications

21/22 September 2022

The Summer School on the Economics of Crime over Time and Space will cover the theory, practice and application of spatial econometric models applied to crime outcomes. There will be a focus on spatial networks models, and how theory can be applied to the analysis of large-scale crime data.

Applications from PhD students and postdoctoral researchers working in the economics of crime and related areas are encouraged. Part of the Summer School Programme will be dedicated to participants' presentations of their work – these will take the form of lightning presentations, and presenters will receive feedback from peers and Faculty.

The summer school will feature two keynote presentations, from Dr Pedro Souza (Queen Mary University of London) and Prof. Yves Zenou (Monash University and University of Southampton).

Lectures will be delivered by Prof. Corrado Giuliatti (University of Southampton), Dr Brendon McConnell (University of Southampton) and Dr Arpita Ghosh (University of Exeter).

The summer school will take place on Zoom on 21 and 22 September 2022.

In order to apply, interested applicants should send an email to ects-summer-school@googlegroups.com, indicating in the subject "Application for Summer School: The Economics of Crime over Time and Space". Please include a short description of your current research and indicate whether you would like to give a lightning presentation of your work. The deadline for application is Friday 9 September 2022. For logistical reasons, the number of participants is limited to a maximum of 30 (spaces are available on a first-come-first served basis).

Applicants will be informed about the outcome of their application by Tuesday 13 September.

The Summer School is an event organized as part of the grant "A Unified Approach to Measuring the Costs of Violent Crime Risk" funded by the ESRC. The event is virtual and there are no fees.

Organisers: Corrado Giuliatti (University of Southampton), Brendon McConnell (University of Southampton)
